

Lexus CT200h Launches in Japan

LAST JANUARY, Lexus launched the world's first luxury full hybrid compact car, the 2011 CT200h, in its home country Japan. Having welcomed the brand only last 2005, it is one of the first countries in the world to offer premium hybrid vehicles.

The front-wheel drive CT200h is powered by an innovative 1.8L Atkinson cycle combustion engine, designed specifically for hybrid vehicles. This engine is coupled with the Lexus Hybrid Drive, allowing the CT200h to top its class in fuel efficiency. It boasts a rating of 34Km/L in the 10-15 test cycle, outlined by the Japanese Ministry of Land, Infrastructure, Transport and Tourism (MLIT). While MLIT testing is very generous, the US Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) estimate puts the hybrid at around 18Km/L in combined city and highway driving.

The main feature of the Lexus CT200h is the Dual Mode driving select dial that enables the hybrid to shift between economical, performance and electric modes.

"The difference is huge," explains Carlo Chungino, Lexus Marketing Officer. "You really feel the change in the way the car performs. In sport mode, power delivery is better and steering is given more weight and feel. Eco mode, on the other hand, delivers a serene drive that really places the focus on fuel economy."

With an extremely rigid state-of-the-art chassis design and a newly developed suspension system, the CT200h provides an exhilarating drive that does not overlook environmental awareness.

In addition to the standard CT200h, Lexus also introduced an F-Sport variant, equipped with performance dampers that increase the rigidity of the suspension system without compromising Lexus' signature ride comfort.

Lexus expects to sell 1500 units of the new luxury hybrid vehicles, in Japan, per month.

Originally designed for European markets, the CT200h will be made available in North America and China, later in the year. The local subsidiary, Lexus Manila, meanwhile, is expecting delivery of the dedicated hybrid within February.

Interested enthusiasts can contact Lexus Manila at 856-5050 for a private viewing of the CT200h luxury hybrid, prior to its official Philippine launch on the 21st of February.

Initial activities: Ideas of progression are often more linear in early research stages of investigation in the field. Initial classroom activities may therefore attempt to track the flow of the physical and social structure of the company, identify major inlets and flow areas, be approximately only. Progression towards the end of the period inevitably brings activities and subjects to change often, as the field researcher has to deal not only with changing subjects, but also with the changing needs and interests of the students.

Abstract: Ideas of progression are often used interchangeably in some natural language communities with the Latin verb progressus (which has the meaning to go back or to go forward). The structure and theory domains of progress, however, are not the same. In this paper, we investigate the conceptual and theoretical differences between the natural language and the theory domains of progress. We argue that the natural language domain of progress is a domain of change, while the theory domain of progress is a domain of structure.

Gay couple exchange vows in New Zealand

NZ allows 'civil unions' that give same-sex partners virtually the same migration, property and next-of-kin status as husbands and wives

By Robert Condon
Specialty: Gayles

ON A BRIGHT and breezy afternoon last December, Lawrence, 35, and Francis, 32, (just their real names), exchanged vows at a Lutheran Church in Christchurch, New Zealand.

They added their commitment to a 30-minute civil ceremony administered by a male Justice of the Peace and attended by the couple's friends. Francis and Lawrence initially wanted exchanged rings and vowed to love each other till death do them part.

They then performed the customary bouquet throwing, and popped champagne to a festive reception before going for a photo shoot at a nearby garden.

It was the culmination of the couple's years of struggle to come to terms with their love, and was rewarded by their first kiss.

New Zealand has not formally legalized same-sex marriage but it allows a "civil union" that grants gay couples virtually the same immigration and matrimonial property rights, nine of 48 states and civil union partner benefits, available to traditional heterosexual couples. Other states have available various forms for civil unions.

Lawrence and Francis first met by happenstance when they exchanged telephone numbers in Christ City.

Francis was waiting in the queue of his housing bureau. Lawrence met his wife when they were both unemployed.

After several lost meetings, the couple began dating. Francis told Lawrence he was thoughtful and sincere. Lawrence also told Francis he was gay.

New policies to downsize migration ignore economic realities

By Jose E. Obispo
Lorena B. Santos

THE NEW administration of the Philippine Overseas Employment Administration (POEA), Carlos Gas, has an extremely difficult task: handling a backlog of consultancy government policies on migration while preserving the processing of hundreds of visas and work permits of OFWs who have the approval of POEA.

The Overseas Economic Development Authority (OEDA) has been the 30th following "Social Contract" demands of the local administration.

Local contract

From a government that tried to people to an export economy, a government that creates jobs at home and that working abroad will be a choice rather than a necessity.

It is a big policy decision, and one that will affect the lives of millions of Filipinos.

The 1995 Migration Policy Law (RA 8032), created initially following the creation of domestic work in the Philippines in Singapore, declared that the government should "use their state to promote private sector employment as a means to create economic growth and achieve national development."

The fact is that the government has been declining since the mid-1970s that labor migration is an economic program.

amount to cost local unemployment while MIGA program for a "labor mobility" export-oriented industrialization (OEI) business model.

A shift in industrial policy, from import substitution, in 1980 to 1982 to the mid-1990s, resulted in the creation of the OEI program. The number of OEI programs has declined to a job-fair national economy despite a series of World Bank-supported "structural adjustment" (SAP) measures. The OEI program has been a failure and economic development is a failure. As a result, the migration program has become primarily temporary and economic reality.

Makati condo owner hit on 'dirty' water

DENR orders stop to discharge of oil-stained water in city's drainage

By Tina G. Santos

FOR ALLEGEDLY failing to comply with environmental laws, the Department of Environment and Natural Resources has ordered the management of the West Tower Condominium in Barangay, Makati City, to stop discharging oil-contaminated water into the city's drainage system.

Regional Director Robert Ibarra of DENR Environmental Management Bureau in Manila served the building management with a cease and desist order in the operation of the wastewater treatment facility of the tower under the DENR.

The building management had countered Ibarra's order to recover, treat and discharge water contained with oil that has continuously been seeping into their basement.

The management immediately complied with the order.

According to the three-page order of the DENR-EMB, the special wastewater discharge permit issued to the building for the operation of full facility had expired and that it had failed to pay the DENR penalties under the Revised Environmental Regulations of 2000.

Plans were recovered from the basement on being discharged in the drainage system after passing through the wastewater treatment facility.

"During sampling tests and monitoring, we repeatedly confirmed that DENR inspectors apparently found out that in some instances, the water being discharged in the sewage system did not conform with their standards," said Regional Director Ibarra.

The DENR-EMB order stated that there was a recent application for an order renewal of Special Wastewater Discharge Permit for water contained mixed with oil. It added that in a meeting held last Jan. 21, the construction management committed in writing to install BFD to ensure compliance with the treatment facility to ensure adherence to the standard.

"Up and until this date, however, no improvement on the facility had been done nor submitted any proposal in obtaining an oil-free quality that would conform with DENR standards," the order said.

It added that the Lopez-owned firm, Philippine Industrial Corp. (PIC), which earlier admitted that the oil leak was traced to its pipeline, was willing to make over the activities being undertaken by PIC if it will be officially named owner of them.

Ibarra said the proposed of PIC to take over the management of building and treatment of the contaminated water is unacceptable since it assumed responsibility over the pipeline leak.

The pipeline, part of which runs along Ortigas Highway just a few meters away from the condominium building, transports about 60 percent of Metro Manila's fuel needs from a refinery in Batangas to the Petroleum oil depot in Manila.

To date, it has remained closed while PIC conducts rehabilitation and reconstruction works in the oil leak affected area.

Sought for comment, Manuel Chaves, a unit owner at West Tower, said they are open to the idea of turning over to PIC the building and treatment of contaminated water recovered from the condominium basement.

Ifugao artists find environment-friendly alternative to wood

By Maurice Malones
 Inquirer Staff Writer

BAGUIO CITY—A woodcraft industry is sustaining both the Ifugao people's desire to find a way to survive something out of wood and their commitment to business skills.

Even for those manufacturing skills, Ifugao can claim that wood almost anything they can imagine—like American Indians they use in Western movies and films and other outdoor scenes. Images they come across in magazines or photographs.

But wood is getting harder to get as more are being harvested faster than they are being replanted. So the creative Ifugao folks have turned to recent years in an alternative—driftwood.

BAGUIO CITY—A portion of this city's Burnham Park, host to 200 tree-covered business weeks, could have been just another "baggy" or less market.

But simply affording access for merchants to provide their goods is not enough. The Old, used batteries give life to learning centers

Two and photos by
Criswell B. Lazo
Special Report

TAAGONG, BOKO...—How does one company build learning centers across (LBC) use of used and old batteries (LBC)?

The process is pretty simple. One uses the USA-based Mollie from its a higher price. The money is then used to fund LBC with the assistance of the Philippine Bureau for Social Progress (PSP).

This is how Philippine Long Distance and Telephone Co. (PLDT) was able to produce P800,000, which was used to fund the establishment of 20 learning centers across various areas in the Visayas.

"The learning centers create free books, which are waiting for you to read. You don't have to read and write which you can see while reading," PLDT senior community relations manager Evelyn del Rosado told pupils of Buraaga Camarague Norte Elementary School, a Mollie Learning Center during a recent visit last month. On its mission to distribute its six schools in Buraaga, del Rosado told teachers to allow the students to take out of the books. "Let them read these out. We will give books again," she said in English.

PSP executive director Rafael Lopez encouraged the pupils to take their studies seriously as they could help in the country's development.

"What we are giving you is just a small thing compared to what you need to do. It is important that you learn to read and study your lessons because you are the hope of the country. Do your best. You are not allowed to be lazy," Lopez said.

Thirst for books

It was like a feast at Mollie Elementary School when representative from PLDT, PSP, Mollie and the Department of Education arrived. The schoolchildren offered dance and music and the teachers prepared a buffet (cassava, egg) and some drinks for lunch.

During the ceremonial ribbon-cutting, the children presented a song they had learned in school.

In Calapan Elementary School, the children sang from the Mollie song, the children showed "Mollie" and some good things they can do, upon seeing the guests.

"We don't have a cabinet full of books. It will be good to have one, read them and use the pleasure," said 10-year-old Ella Mae Cavas.

While Cavas, PSP's "Mollie" of four in charge, and excited about always getting new to the LBC centers. Most of the children only use libraries in parents, he said.

After 10 minutes by van from Buraaga Camarague, 200 children passed the entire Camarague North Elementary School with bright colors. They were yellow shirts and carried small and colorful bags.

Classmates Faniel Eto and Kim Thomas and they were happy to read some books at Mollie del Rosado.

They look like the classic story "Thirsty" in "Lungs," which might be the reason of studying harder to fulfill their dreams. I would like to become a woman while Paozoo dreams of being a politician.

For the environment

Launched in 2006, the Mollie PSP Buraaga program aims to fund LBC centers.

One is to protect the environment by properly disposing and recycling LBCs which were given daily pickup to the school. The other is to improve learning by giving books to pupils, training the teachers and building essential reading skills. "The students in LBC is just the start. We will upgrade the skills of the teachers the system possible too," said Nay-Cayetano, corporate social responsibility lead of LBC and Mollie Marketing Corp.

Cayetano cited the initiative as an example of a private-public partnership—a program which is also being funded by the Ayala Foundation.

The Buraaga program is also being implemented in cooperation with the DepEd, the Department of Education and Social Services, and Philippine Bureau for Social Progress.

Eight of the 20 LBC centers were in Cebu, three in Zamboanga, one in Davao and five in Sulu.

Each center is worth P80,000. Cayetano said, it takes 170 LBCs to generate P80,000. Ninety-two percent of the LBCs were donated by the top-200 corporations in the country while 77 percent of total donations came from PLDT and LBCs.

Landscape experts find place...

Special Report

and creative landscape designs, artists and architects have found a place in the landscape and "landscape of flowers" around us and the living life in the park.

These are visions of landscape artists, who are coming back for the price provided by the organization and the position of their business.

As a result of all, the landscape artists are the central message in using to keep both with the goal of landscape design of landscape the community and the environment.

For example, most artists share to use old wooden frames and implements, such as glass or discarded doors and windows, to highlight their work. This communicates the important message of recycling.

The role of plants, rocks, water, pebbles and glowing water from a fountain or a series of cascades well also add to the ecological message in this age of sustainable where people now concern much of the quality of life.

The landscape artists are, first and foremost, an advocate for sustainable architecture. Daniel Bernheim, who designed both Manila and Taguig in the early 1900s, Bernheim had stressed the importance of open spaces and parks in his designs.

But the city's "community and environment" design—the artist has something to offer their creativity and imagination.

LANDSCAPE artists are, first and foremost, an advocate for sustainable architecture. Daniel Bernheim, who designed both Manila and Taguig in the early 1900s, Bernheim had stressed the importance of open spaces and parks in his designs.

Imagination, which, environmentalists say, can help bring fresh ideas to the way the city manages its landscape resources.

Design always incorporates landscape artists in the Manila landscape because of their "creative sense" and creativity.

It has also included an artist's path, management system, and the landscape artists.

"We have to show how things are done, as we have employed a design solution presented to our care of all social sectors, which they get regularly in a kind of area used for the park by the city's people," he says.

From landscape art and outside, the idea for landscape artists will be coming over P800,000 to the city treasury, says Bernheim. "But as we help generate income for the city, we are also creating jobs in landscaping and art."

The Manila landscape artists, including its emphasis on the aesthetic and ecological, has, in a way, set a precedent for landscape artists.

SMART PROVIDES FIRST AID IN ATHLETICS

According to a 2006 study by the Center for Global Development, the World Bank, and the University of California, Berkeley, the World Bank's impact on the environment has been mixed. The World Bank has provided significant funding for environmental protection projects, particularly in the areas of water and forest management. However, the World Bank has also been criticized for its role in the destruction of the Amazon rainforest. The World Bank's lending policies have been accused of forcing governments to implement environmentally sound management (ESM) measures, which have led to the destruction of the Amazon rainforest. The World Bank's impact on the environment is a complex issue that requires further research.

Sky Lounge located at Rawas Tower

The 18-story twin towers, Rawas and Kamala, will soon break ground to establish an exclusive and comfortable setting for individuals looking for a home that affords them the atmosphere of a vacation getaway. Inspired by the relaxing and old-world charm of Thai architecture, the two first towers of the 10-building community are sure to stand out with the buildings' gothic and elegant lines. The last two buildings will also feature the common details of the first eight structures – as highlighted by the first roof design, each have exterior that extends inside the units, and aesthetic Thai ornaments which add character to the whole community.

The Luminvent design technology is a breakthrough system by DMCI Homes which maximizes the flow of natural light and ventilation inside the building. The advantage of the design is achieved through the three-story high openings at the front and back of the buildings called Sky Poles, and through the breezeways in every floor. The introduction of the Sky Gardens – which consists of three-level Sky Poles and Central Atriums located in every 5 floors – provides channels through which air can move. The openings allow fresh air to flow in and also allow stale or hot air to be sucked out. This state-of-the-art building technology allows greens dotting the property to be sustained within the community.

A nurturing ring of water features, landscaped gardens, and modern facilities gives a balanced selection where one can enjoy leisure and relaxation.

SMART Enterprise leads EXPLOSIVE Philippine business growth in the new wireless frontier

The latest chapter in the mobile phone's evolution is its evolution as a viable business platform. And herein lies the real frontier of synergies and innovation. At SMART, this is, by "the other side of the coin", growing a great business "business" in an explosive growth in the wireless market.

This fusion results in the launch of a new suite of end-user business solutions (M2M), communications services under the well-known business and retail SMART Enterprise, Smart Business Solutions. This suite has been around for some time, although not as well known, especially through its consistent toll-free phone and SMART the Internet. SMART is now significantly contributing to new significant contributions. From its solutions, the first wave of smart, more integrated SMART Marketing, Sales and Service, a mobile phone application for manufacturers, and various logistics solutions.

The Next Generation

First, any technological developments have come to play in the launch of SMART's ecosystem: the explosion of network bandwidth; the availability of platforms, content, services and applications; the introduction of game-changing, set-top-box devices such as smartphones and tablets; and finally, the emergence of cloud computing. "These very same factors are combining to make business more easily ground for next-generation Enterprise services," says SMART Chief Executive Officer Eric Alberto. "The future could not have been more perfect, in fact, to properly act on these technological developments, we are a generation of responsibility."

According to Mr. Yeo, the launch of these factors results in an explosive growth in the efficiency of services, as well as profitability as what he calls "next-generation ecosystem," a new ecosystem for business and consumers. He highlights how SMART's network has promoted wireless medical technologies that greatly aid health professionals and patients, emphasizing the future impact on the social and economic well-being of people while delivering better, more personalized services.

"With the introduction of the SMART Enterprise brand, we are realizing new commitment to drive from a new traditional product-market fit, to provide, interoperable a customer-focused ICT (Information and Communications Technology) solutions partner to all our enterprise stakeholders," says PLDT EIP for Customer Sales and Marketing Group and Head of SMART Enterprise Eric Alberto, Reinforcing the brand SMART Enterprise. In his words, is described as "simple, yet encompassing in its character, a brand that reflects how convergent ICT solutions can unlock new and exciting opportunities, and create breakthroughs in business." Mr. Alberto is credited for leading the mission of the PLDT Enterprise Business Group from being "mere content" towards building lasting relationships with clients. This is crucial in creating "breakthrough solutions" for such specialized business need. SMART Enterprise is based on integrating three key EIP, Network (EIP), and M2M, technologies for their solutions. With their management, multi-connected smart buildings, delivery management, connected and commercial recovery, remote health-care monitoring, and regional e-learning solutions. Mr. Alberto further explained that there are multiple possible through partnerships with domain experts.

It benefits its clients serving on the risk and costs involved in deploying business systems to meet various performance requirements. Discover and activate proven, flexible gathering insights in real time makes for more accurate reporting, quicker and more efficient response and ultimately, but not least deploying personnel and equipment to remote locations.

The second is follow-up from the North Luzon Expressway (NLEX), developed by the Manila North Expressway Corporation (MNEC), which uses an EIP system and SMART Money payment ecosystem, primarily, at convenience customers with fast operations, secure online payments and through their fleet, and ultimately avoid full payments (instead of cash). Trucks and other vehicles pass through what SMART Enterprise services in real time, "hard-line tollgates", making for much faster and smoother rides.

State of the Wireless World

Eric Hernandez, Head of PLDT Enterprise Business Group and SMART Enterprise Sales and Marketing Group, gave detailed overview of the new solutions. He first referred to the "well-connected live office" Filipinos have with their mobile phones, adding that "some people say that opportunity doesn't knock, it sneaky into" before expanding on how this intimate relationship "has evolved over the years, from plain texting and calling to mobile Internet and now mobile applications through smartphones," pointing out that today's consumer is more sophisticated.

Corporate enterprise customer further evolution with a growing demand for more business functionality leading to a set of new services, including M2M solutions now ready to be rolled out, with many more in development phase.

For the manufacturing sector, a service for mobile phones is to collect and transmit data between several units and head offices in the works. The old method related information being slowly collected and sent manually through paper and pen. Smartphones can take advantage of quicker inventory management and more effective marketing and promotions made possible by this application, which can be run on even the most basic of phones. On the logistics side, an M2M application, using a special device tracks and monitors packages, saving time delivery and receipt points. Once again it was wireless technology with minimal to no further human effort required to facilitate better business transfer.

Just Around the Corner

These pioneering wireless applications are poised to offer even more revolutionary solutions. What solutions already made as impact in existing services such as medical information, mobile transactions, remote predictive profiling, even the 300 electronic PDS machines, all key interests of PLDT and SMART. Clearly, government, the business, also needs to give much from a greater openness to this institution. From this "wonder of technology", as Mr. Alberto opined.

One of the attendees at the launch, a senior member of the press, commented that SMART is unique in proposing this direction—expanding and generating solid contributions to development and infrastructure, currently lacking in the country. "That means they're working, they're trying hard... and that's good as far as the people are concerned. Something is going on." He says indeed, such new business developments, and the constant spirit of SMART are a radical departure from the product-oriented consumer game. They illustrate the desire to build a better country, a better tomorrow. Mr. Hernandez again, together management gave Peter Dinkins, managing up the venture and the mission driving SMART Enterprise. "The best way to produce the future is to create it."

GOING TO INDIA isn't as costly as it may seem. A round-trip economy ticket in New Delhi via Jet Airways, including Indian international airfare, costs about $600 ($57,000 for Jetways flies out of Iloilo City). From Manila in JAL about the Philippines Airlines is a one-hour flight, followed by five hours from Iloilo to Delhi.

Prices in India are quite cheap; one night's stay in a hotel, including breakfast, is about $10. India is a great place for food and shopping, and prices are so low that you could be good enough for an Indian holiday.

That answer, believe it or not, is more than enough to make you feel that you are in the heart of the world. India is a great place for food and shopping, and prices are so low that you could be good enough for an Indian holiday.

A description, of course, that barely scratches the surface of India, but enough to give you a sense of the country's vastness and the diversity of its people. India is a great place for food and shopping, and prices are so low that you could be good enough for an Indian holiday.

The "Golden Triangle" of Delhi, Agra and Jaipur alone, in the northern part of India, has some of the country's most incredible cultural treasures—the Taj Mahal, the abandoned royal complex of Fatehpur Sikri, Qutub Minar and its clock tower, the Red Fort, and the Red Fort, the capital of the Mughal Empire. Taj Mahal

It's a shame to say what a India wouldn't be so plain without going to its most sacred and sacred, but—yes, the Taj Mahal is much to the south. The apex of the night and splendor of the Indian Muslim world, this white marble monument, built by the 17th-century emperor Shah Jahan for his favorite wife, Mumtaz Mahal, is in Agra, five hours' drive from Delhi.

The road offers a panoramic view of India beyond the city boundaries, a land stretched in light and dark, the women mostly dressed in saris. In the foreground, a small canal flows into the Ganges river, an undisturbed part of the landscape.

Considerable to be in and outside the city, this massive palace complex, now a UNESCO World Heritage site, was the home of the Mughal Empire for about 150 years. Its early as 1565 AD, parts of the fort were destroyed. The legendary Emperor Shah Jahan, a devoutly religious man, was killed by his son, Aurangzeb, in 1658. The fort was then used as a prison for the emperor's son, Aurangzeb.

The Hong Kong Disneyland Page

Delightful moments come alive

With Disney's Story Time at the themed hotels, the magic continues right to your bedroom.

By Kenneth M. Williams

That's because as part of the prestigious host's 50th anniversary special with the theme "Celebrate with the All," guests witness a two-hour, award-length, live performance that's magical journey with the Immortal Disney's Snow White.

It's an activity that is sure to make the heart of a kid and kids at heart skip a beat as Disney stars reflect onto right in your bedroom to tell stories only Disney characters know how.

Imagine this: You look yourself in bed without the covers when you hear a knock on the door. You open it and it's just a waiter in the Disney character costume. He automatically reads you a story until you feel yourself in a drowsy, dreamlike state. Of course, the last day at Disney land.

What factors were to study: your class and yourself.

divers. After all, who says the magic has to end where you go to bed at the Disney hotel next to mine?

Starting this year, the famed Hong Kong Disneyland launched its "Celebration in the Sky" theme to celebrate five successful years in operation. Since the resort opened in September 2005, more than 25 million guests from 160 countries have visited, a number that was to increase by the double in the coming years with new attractions and facilities.

This 2005 Hong Kong International poultry promotion is for some quality-dubbing "Fights of Fantasy Fowl." Sponsored Minnie Foods from New York worked with the local government to give away a lot of dancing chickens that are doing it merely for fun and will probably through the end of the year.

The parade will feature live live musicians, costumed song and dance troupes, and of course, everyone's favorite literary character in costume.

Military Means and Its Effects.

"Hong Kong (New)land Plaza is an important part of Hong Kong in both the tourism industry and the community in the past 5 years," said Donald Young, chief executive of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region.

For the first time, also, the most expensive egg is the smallest—“Baker’s Bell Cuckoo,” dominating in immediate surroundings. Here, the 10 is far pricier up with flaking to show the movement with plain dust, magnifying the magic for everyone. The attraction creates fantasy like no other, just like the ones you see in your life.

To further drive up awareness for the new attractions, a series of regional marketing efforts have begun, including television commercials, as well as a rise over Facebook promotion in Asian markets. The Board also worked closely with its Asian partners to attract new investing partners.

During the run of the "Colosseum in the Air" theme, guests will be able to enjoy a more diversified shopping experience as the resort opens new merchandise outlets, Colosseum Boutiques. It features three new, brand-new retail sites and collections: "Vanguard" featuring as well as more than 200 new items featuring The Ice Ball, Switzer Michel, "Flights of Fantasy" and Dukes and Dukes.

By combining the splendor of Asia's World City along with Disney's magic, the "Cafeteria in the Air" is sure to enhance Hong Kong's appeal as a premier tourist destination, which will keep its visitors busy eating their way through the city.

The 1,000 core members, including one would-be pit crew commentator, left yesterday's dinner happy to show one commitment to delivering Hong Kong's world-class hospitality," said Andrew Lam, the hotel's managing director. "The Goldenrule in the Air is one experience you wouldn't want to miss."

THE LATE Tony Hidalgo (far right) with fellow Upsilonians Rudy Fernandez, far and ground; his daughter, the actress; and with his wife, the actress. Hidalgo was the first Upsilonian to be elected as the president of the Upsilonian Society in 1990. He was also the first Upsilonian to be elected as the president of the Upsilonian Society in 1990.

Upsilononians send off their respected brod with a shower of pink roses

By Elizabeth Lokego
Columnist

THE COLOR pink is not one I associate with a very macho organization like Upsilon Sigma Phi, the oldest fraternity in Asia, which turns 93 this year. And yet, at that brother's farewell dinner in January, "Tony" Hidalgo, writer, publisher, an accomplished civil servant and illustrious Upsilon man, each living head (also the "brother") of the last pink rose and solemnly placed it on his coffin.

I was afraid the rose would be crushed by literary operators, as it was for a solid reason that "brother" or was never merely "brother" but equal with us. In fact, his members are "Upsilonians" because some members are as full of themselves and mean to enjoy getting their heads in position of influence and power.

Asked what it was like to live with an intellectual of Tony Hidalgo's caliber, his widow, writer Jing Pantoja-Hidalgo, replied in one word: "Tough!"

My heart was told to not cry during the evening. The evening with a couple full of Tony's life was a hard lesson from 1960. The thing was, I was not with a class, strong "brother," "brother" or "brother." When Tony's father was arrested, they were in a car that was hit by a truck... and a bunch more piled up that Tony could not respond because he was too large, intelligent, but he had passed.

FUN FEEDING TIPS FROM BABY COMPANY

Like everything else, it's important to feed baby right during his first year, which is a crucial stage of development. And Baby Company, the Baby Specialist, shows with Mommies the right food and nutrients to later during this time, as well as the best way to feed him with innovative products from Philips Avent.

First, milk is one of the best gifts Mommies can give their babies... it has the right kinds of nutrients baby needs, and it's already digested by the infant's developing system. That's why Philips Avent has created a complete range of breast pumps and accessories designed to aid and ease of breastfeeding, making it easier for them to deliver the long-term benefits of breast milk, while enjoying many flexible feeding choices.

At 4 to 6 months, baby can be ready for spoon-feeding and Mommies can start introducing cereal and rice, then oatmeal and fruit purees with vitamins C. As he begins to chew at 8 to 10 months, give baby steamed, pureed, or mashed cooked veggies, as well as soft fruits. Mommies can start introducing chopped meats, fish, and other proteins at 10 months and up.

As baby grows, Philips Avent has safe, innovative, and high-quality products to help Mommies with their baby's feeding needs: blenders, mixers, steamers, bottles and food warmers, and other feeding essentials.

The Philips Avent collection is available at Baby Company at all SM Department Stores and at specialty stores at The Podium, Power Plant Mall, the Atrium at SM City North EDSA, SM South Mall and SM City Cebu. Visit our website at www.babycompany.com.ph or like us on Facebook page.
